Chess: From First Moves to Checkmate: King, Daniel ...

In chess, there is a general consensus among players and theorists that the player who makes the first move has an inherent advantage. Since 1851, compiled statistics support this view; White consistently wins slightly more often than Black, usually scoring between 52 and 56 percent. White's winning percentage is about the same for tournament games between humans and games between computers ...

The first few moves of a chess game can be some of the most important moves you make. In those moves, you will establish your early plans and fight for your place on the board. Most beginners don't need to memorize exact opening moves and should instead focus on good opening principles like controlling the center and developing your pieces.

The Best Chess Openings For Beginners - Chess.com

1.e4 is the most common opening move in chess. One of the key ideas of this move is to control the center quickly with the pawn which is placed in the center by the first move, also liberating White's light-squared bishop as well as the White Queen. White can follow up by playing Nf3 and moving his bishop to the dangerous c4 square.

Every Chess Opening: The First Move! - Chess.com

The player with the white pieces always moves first. Therefore, players generally decide who will get to be white by chance or luck such as flipping a coin or having one player guess the color of the hidden pawn in the other player's hand. White then makes a move, followed by black, then white again, then black and so on until the end of the game.

Move your King Pawn forward to e4. In both of these methods the key piece for you is your Queen. The Queen is the piece that you are going to use to achieve the checkmate, so your first move should be to open up space for the Queen to move diagonally. Moving the King Pawn forward two spaces to square e4 achieves this (e4).

How to Checkmate in 3 Moves in Chess: 7 Steps (with Pictures)

The debate of the best first move is not a new. Historically it is considered that the first move 1.e2-e4 is more aggressive and other moves especially the 1. Nf3 are more quiet and leading to the positional game. This is also reflected in the opening books, the openings after 1.e4 are called open games and after.1d4 we find the closed openings.

Black's opening will nearly always depend on white's first move. Because white goes first, black openings are often called "defenses," though many of these (like the Sicilian Defense) can also be quite aggressive in their own right. The most popular move for black is to bring its queenside bishop pawn forward to c5.
